

UNCLASSIFIED

Stories Must Never be Forgotten February 20

CCH PUBLICATIONS YOU MAY NOT KNOW ABOUT

The Center for Cryptologic History (CCH) has issued a great number of publications since it was established in 1989. Unclassified articles are available on NSA.gov.

We thought it would be interesting each month to highlight one of our publications that you don't know you want -- yet.

One of the most important monographs the CCH ever published was The Invisible Cryptologists. This is the story of the first African Americans in cryptology: they were hired in World War II, but they were placed in a segregated office, as the social mores of that era demanded.

The Invisible Cryptologists used stories from oral history interviews with those first minority employees to tell of their personal struggles both on and off the job. These are stories that must never be forgotten.

You can read this important book online at: The Invisible Cryptologists

UNCLASSIFIED